What hopes do you have regarding what this shift can bring to students?	What fears do you have regarding this shift?

My biggest fear is that bilingual schools would have to share students, putting enrollment at risk and perhaps even leading to competition for students.

Final thoughts: Now that you have learned about each potential shift, based on your current understanding, please indicate a summary of your overall thoughts on each below:

Introduce or expand focus programs	Programs for students are always welcome.
Grade reconfiguration, e.g. K-2 & 3-5 or convert K-8s to elementary and middle	Well, that would be a great option for new students, or perhaps for those of us who still have children in those grades.
Relocate focus programs	I wouldn't like that.
Consolidate two or more schools into one building (existing or new)	I think it's hard to adjust to new environments.
Close one or more schools and distribute students to multiple schools	Prioritize bilingual schools, as they are very important to my community.

I hope that bilingual classes will continue. That all students will have the opportunity to pursue their academic studies with their teachers. That all our schools will stay open because we have very good teachers.	I'm worried and afraid that learning resources will be cut back due to a lack of funding. It would be a very drastic change for the children, and that's scary.

Relocate focus programs	The reduction in funding is a major limitation.
Consolidate two or more schools into one building (existing or new)	Quality of service, education, programs, teachers.

Final thoughts: Now that you have learned about each potential shift, based on your current understanding, please indicate a summary of your overall thoughts on each below:

Introduce or expand focus programs	Will these specialized programs attract more students? At what cost?
Grade reconfiguration, e.g. K-2 & 3-5 or convert K-8s to elementary and middle	There could be age-related conflicts
Relocate focus programs	It would be beneficial if the number of students does not decrease
Consolidate two or more schools into one building (existing or new)	It has the same drawbacks as distributing students
Close one or more schools and distribute students to multiple schools	The most logical approach, but with more drawbacks because it requires prioritizing which students should attend which school

My hope is that there would be a way to get the children to school. Or that we could get together with the other parents and take turns picking up and dropping off the children.	The fear is having to start all over again. This would be a major change for both the children and us as parents—having to change jobs and move.
